APPEAL TO LAWYERS.
TO THE 2,500 LAWYERS IN KENTUCKY.

Much that is good in government is due to your honorable profession. Its members, as a rule, outnumber any other class of men in our legislative bodies, serve on most important committees, and shape most of their legislation. They preside exclusively as judges of our higher courts and determine what is and what is not law. Their endorsement of a benign law makes it equal to those of the "Medes and Persians;" and their condemnation of a vicious one insures its speedy repeal. Hence no other class of men are more entitled to credit for our good laws, nor more responsible for our bad ones. Led by your profession the world has advanced step by step from legal chaos to a comparatively high standard of laws. Assassination, once common and without legal restraints, was prohibited in the interests of human life; highway robbery was prohibited in the interest of property rights; arson was prohibited in the interest of home comforts; common thievery was prohibited in the interest of personal industry; polygamy was prohibited in the interest of helpless childhood; and carry concealed and deadly weapons has been prohibited for the still better protection of human life. For these and many other wholesome prohibitory laws upon which our modern civilization rests, we owe much to your time-honored profession. They have not accomplished everything desired; but without their restraining influence the world would be a "Sodom and Gomorrah."

But, while building up a government based upon a system of prohibitory laws as the bulwark of our civil liberty and domestic tranquility, we are strangely fostering a business that tends to nullify the whole system. The beverage liquor traffic, once insignificant amongst legitimate enterprises, has been transplanted into government gardens, federal and state, and cultivated up to the huge proportions and revolutionary powers. So that it now combines within itself the crime-producing agencies of the primitive assassin, the highway robber, the midnight incendiary, the common thief, the inhuman polygamist and the conceiver of deadly weapons.

Yes, the greatest and most honored men of your profession have proclaimed from the judicial throne that it causes 75 per cent. of the aggregate of all crimes now committed against the long list of our time-honored prohibitory laws. Hence this seventy-five per cent.

of all crimes is first prohibited by us as the embodiment of the accumulated wisdom of the past; and then it is adjudged cause it is legalized, protected and fostered by us. Could two systems of law—or rather, one of law and one of pretendedly legalized anarchy—be more antagonistic in character or mutually at war in tendency? In thus attempting to legalize the liquor traffic we are reproducing by our own act every class of criminals we have for thousands of years been legislating to suppress. Add to this seemingly idiotic inconsistency the opportunities the legalized and organized business affords for the encouragement and commission of crime, and the motherly sympathy and fatherly protection it naturally gives to the seventy-five per cent. of our criminals it creates, and who but God can weigh our responsibility for its existence?

The almost universal sentiment is that saloon men disregard their oath to obey laws enacted for their business—which shows that either bad men mainly engage in it, or it soon makes them bad. From this end of the criminal chain thus created by our vicious legislation, down to the lowest stratum of criminals linked together by it, this seventy-five percent of the nation's outlaws are organized around a legalized wrong, with the business that holds them together and makes them powerful for evil and protected and fostered by our government. None know this startling truth any better than men learned in the law, and none are more responsible for its existence. Hence your attitude of almost universal indifference to, or endorsement of, present conditions places you in sad contrast with your most illustrious predecessors. I am not speaking of personal habits, but of government emergencies as history develops them—that patriotism that adapts men to the requirements of the age in which they live. Your predecessors said "governments are instituted to secure to all men life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness;" that our constitution was made to establish justice and insure domestic tranquility; that "no legislature can barter away the public health or the public morals;" that there are "few sources of crime and misery to society equal to the dramshop;" that "the statistics of every state show it to be such;" and that because it is such "there is no inherent right" nor is it "a privilege of a citizen of the United States" to engage in it. And yet with the present generation of your profession dominating our lawmaking bodies, the attempt has been made and is being made to establish such rights in and grant such privileges to the universally recognized outlaws of the nation! Does heathenism show a darker picture? Is there not enough patriotism left in your profession to lift it from the position of a mere political trafficker in human rights and human life? Shall it not again be made to rise in the majesty of its former greatness and take the lead in legislation for the best interest of humanity? One hundred lawyers in the State of Kentucky willing to risk or bear defeat for a while, can lift their profession from its present low political plane—change the character of legislation in the State, expunge from our statutes every vestige of liquor licensing laws and enshrine themselves in the hearts of good people of the State as no set of men ever did before. What we want just now is lawyers, clothed with the recognized authority of their profession, to go before the people and discuss the legal aspects of this question. Interest has been sufficiently aroused by the discussion of other features of it to prepare the people to hear and understand the points involved. Neither our State or Federal Government has any more right to legalize the beverage liquor traffic to raise revenue than they have to put to death lunatics, idiots and paupers to save revenue. The former both makes and kills the latter, destroying many others besides. Let one hundred lawyers of average ability boldly take a stand in Kentucky against the legality of this licensed wrong and not an intelligent one of the other twenty-four hundred will meet them in public discussion of the question. Was there ever a greater opportunity for men in any profession to rise like meteors, and light up the pathway of the multitude as they blunder through the legal mazes of this mighty reform? We would like every lawyer in the State to send us ten cents for this little paper one year; and for those who wish to do so to write short articles for the paper on the legal aspects of the question. And we especially request that every lawyer in the State who desires in any way to aid in the complete suppression of the beverage liquor traffic send us his name, age and postoffice address—not for publication, but that we may know where the friends of humanity in the legal profession are.—The Kentucky Patriot.

TIME FOR POLITICAL BEES.

The County Democratic Committee having decided on manner and time for selecting Democratic nominees, November 11, it is now up to the Democrats of the county to select whom they will have for their officers, for a nomination should be equal to an election. This contest is free to all Democrats and the county is full of competent men to fill the office. Let those who have aspirations enter now that the people may decide who is their choice, and give to the party, nominees of the very best material we have.

There are some people who are permitted to go in good circles and who, after the nights are far spent, disgracefully stagger to their homes. We welcome good people to Mt. Sterling, business men who know how and do behave themselves, but those fellows who come here for the purpose of disgracing themselves and leading off those easily tempted, should be taught a lesson right speedily.

STUBBORN FACTS.

The Democrats are united as they have not been before for ten years, and Parker and Davis will receive the normal vote of the party with a good many recruits from their opponents. The Republicans are split into factions on several issues. Nearly all the old Hanna machine men are disgruntled as they see a young element of their party in the saddle, and they will not pull hard on the traces unless they are paid for their work, either in money or promises. In West Virginia, Delaware, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Wisconsin the rival Republican factions are intent on defeating each other, and one or the other factions have no faith in or love for candidate Roosevelt, though most of them declare publicly they will vote for him, but many will secretly knife him. In these and other States there are minor factions, and important Republicans who, while keeping within party lines, are opposed to their candidate for President and do not mind saying so in private conversation. The glamour of the Rough Rider has worn off, and the business interests of the country have more weight in politics than the imperialistic element. That is the great danger to the Rough Rider. The farmers have discovered that the trusts are bleeding them and that the high price of wheat is more than offset by the increased cost of what they buy. The workmen are organized politically for their protection, for the Republican majority in Congress refused to listen to their prayer for legislation for the Eight Hour bill, the anti-injunction bill and the other lesser laws labor thinks necessary for its salvation. All the Republican leaders favor the open shop, and most of them are openly in sympathy with the Parry organization of protected trusts and manufacturers.

Wages are being reduced and strikes are numerous, and the cost of living is still advancing, which does not inspire confidence in the economic policies of the Republican party of those who are suffering from loss of wages and increased cost of food. The trusts have decreased the profits of the small storekeepers, while rents and household expenses are higher than ever before, and the opportunities for increased business are monopolized by the great department stores, who can purchase of the trusts at much less than the small storekeeper has to pay. People with limited incomes find their expenses have increased while their revenues are stationary. All these people are inquiring why the trusts should be protected by the tariff in selling their products at the highest possible price here and a much lower price in foreign countries. Many of the voters have discovered that the tariff prevents competition and fosters monopoly, and that the increased cost for their products that the monopolists charge is a much greater tax than the Government receives. The revenues of the United States are declining and the expenses are greater than ever before in time of peace. Not only have the expenses of the Government increased much faster in proportion than the population, but neither President Roosevelt, his Cabinet, nor the Republican majority in Congress have offered any solution of the problem, but are all intent on "letting well enough alone" and have paralyzed the industries of the country with a do-nothing policy by fighting all proposals for reform. The Government departments are extravagant and filled with grafters which the Republican party has refused to investigate, although evidence was plentiful that but a beginning had been made in exposing the frauds through a partisan investigation of but two bureaus of the Post Office Department.

Knowledge of all these sins of the Republican party is finding lodgement in the hearts of many voters, and they have determined on a change. Upon the surface of the political field all is still and serene, but there are mutterings in the homes of the farmers, the cottages of the artisan and the tenements of the laboring men that bodes ill to the Republican candidates. The still small voice of reason is working more changes of sentiment than the hired and blatant notes of the trust apologist can overcome, blare he ever so loudly, and there is a quiet determination to "turn the rascals out."

LOOK AT THIS.

In the selection of candidates for high positions, or any other positions as to that, the searchlight should be turned on. The newspapers do this unpleasant work and the only way these statements are met are by the sneering method "that is a newspaper report."

Turn on the searchlight. The New York American on August 29th published an astonishing story concerning the contributions of the trust to the campaign fund of the Republican party. That newspaper asserted, upon what it claimed was unquestionable Republican authority, that the Standard Oil Company had donated $1,000,000 and J. Pierpont Morgan had given $250,000. It also announced that the members of the Union League Club of New York had contributed $100,000 to the fund.

In regard to these trust contributions, alleged to have been made, the American quotes its informant as saying: "Morgan's emnity to Roosevelt ended with the appointment of his banking firm as fiscal agent for the purchase of the $40,000,000 Panama Canal. The $750,000 pledged by the Steel and Iron Trust was not difficult to exact after the Chicago convention, with the approval of the President, promised no tinkering with the tariff 'except by its friends.'"

We Kentuckians are in many respects a great people, but let us not boast of our greatness and civil liberty as long as truth is trampled underfoot, the ballot box is tampered with, and the choice of the people as expressed in convention or at the polls is thwarted by unscrupulous men. Facts and reported occurrences in Democratic and Republican districts (now engaging attention in a judicial and Congressional district in our State) are enough to arouse the people. When will the stuffer of a ballot-box and falsifier of election returns be regarded as he is—a thief—deserving a term in the penitentiary? Look at him.

WHY PERSIST?

The legalized sale of intoxicants as beverages is a reproach to patriotism, a dishonor to our civilization, a degrader of humanity. The candidate for office who uses whiskey as one of the chief agencies for obtaining public favor is not the man to represent an intelligent, patriotic, God-fearing constituency. Why do not the men, Democrats and Republicans, who love self, their fellowmen, home, country and their God, admonish, entreat or warn and demand of candidates that they quit this?

HENRY WATSON.
Henry Watson, who is classed among our young, active, aggressive lawyers, announces in this issue that he is a candidate for the office of County Attorney and that his claims are subject to the action of the Democratic party in its primary, called for November 11th. Mr. Watson came from Eastern Kentucky to this city several years ago with the avowed determination of making of himself the very best and most capable lawyer it was possible to attain to. Our people who know him are well aware that he has risen to prominence both as a lawyer and business men by indomitable will and continued effort, supporting a large family while he plied himself to the study of law and the prosecution of other business. He has asked for this position before and when the people showed their preference for another, like all true Democrats he conceded their rights and went to work for the party, using his influence in making the majorities of the nominees as large as it was possible to do. Mr. Watson is qualified to fill the position he asks for and if the Democracy of Montgomery county make him their choice he promises his time and efforts to give to the people a careful, fearless and effective worker. He asks the patrons and friends of the Advocate to carefully consider his claims.

CLARENCE THOMAS.

Mr. Clarence Thomas is not ashamed to record as County Attorney for the past three years, and therefore comes before the Democracy of this county asking that his work be endorsed by naming him as the representative of the people for this place. While a party man the people will bear witness that he has risen above party lines and represented the entire people without favoritism. During his term working in unison with the attorneys of the State he succeeded in collecting nearly $8,000 taxes on the C. & O. franchise with an annual taxation of more than $550. In considering his claims for an endorsement Mr. Thomas would have the people to pass on the results of his labors and to vote intelligently for the candidate that has been able to do so much for his people and that can best serve them. He works faithfully for his party and never quails because the people have not at all times endorsed his views.

G. A. MCCORMICK.

Mr. G. A. McCormick is a candidate for the office of Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic primary November 11, 1904. Once having served as Assessor, then as Sheriff, he is better prepared for this most important office. This office is important from the very fact that the amount of taxes is measured by the assessment of property, and it requires a man of general information as to values, to give a correct valuation of property. Mr. McCormick being a well posted and good reasoner, is well fitted for the duties of this one of the most responsible offices within the gift of the people. Politically he is a democrat, so certain his party principles are correct that he never fails to do his work at the proper time, be it day or night. His claims are right and modest and will be considered with care by the people.

M. J. GOODWIN.

Among the announcements of candidates subject to the action of the party primary election Nov. 11, 1904, is that of Prof. M. J. Goodwin, for the office of Superintendent of Schools of Montgomery County. Prof. Goodwin offers for this office feelingly because he can serve the people acceptably because he is a teacher of many years' experience, thoroughly acquainted with practical school work, and is conversant with the duties of the office. The next thing for the people to know is this: He is energetic, stout and healthy, willing to assume arduous work and responsibilities, mature in years, possessed with mental vigor and with sufficient courage. He is sure the children will be supplied with only teachers of information and gifted in the imparting of knowledge. Of his Democracy it is not necessary to speak, for in his own language we would say his Democracy has never been questioned, and in the most trying times the eye of suspicion never rested on him.

THE SHOE MAN

HORSES USED IN FISHING.

Experienced Angler Finds that the Fish Are Not Afraid of the Animals.

Stalking trout with horses as blinds, as the plains hunters of the west stalk antelope, sounds queer at first, but it is a trick which an afternoon's experience taught an old angler to his profit, says the Detroit Free Press.

Where he lives the streams are too deep to wade, and run through open country. The fish have been taught by years of experience to be exceedingly cautious. The only way to get them is by fishing from the bank facing the sun, and then with a long line and rod casting from a good distance back from the water, and judging of the strikes by the sense of feeling. One day he noticed some ponies standing at the edge of the brook cooling their feet. By cautious management he contrived to gain a footing close to them and made a cast from there.

The fish rose splendidly, and he caught a couple of half-pounders. By hitting two of the docile horses with lincents he chanced to have in his pocket, he persuaded them to remain long enough for him to get half a dozen, which seemed about all the hole contained.

The next time he went fishing he took sugar, and coaxed one of the horses to go along the bank with him. Keeping close alongside, he had a capital sport. Probably a cow would have done just as well, for the point of discovery seemed to be about the fact that the trout have learned to distinguish between men, their enemies, and other animals harmless to them.

LONDON SLUM KITCHEN.

Miserable Tenement That Was the School Room of Thieves and Vagrants.

At the bottom of Great Saffron Hill, London, is situated what at time was one of the most hideous and dangerous of slums. It is part of a ruinous old tenement, exactly answering to the description of the infamous den to which the Artful Dodger led Oliver Twist as a new "pal" for a visit to "Greenland." The den had several ominous-looking staircases leading into dark and ill-smelling passages, and had plenty of cupboards available for thieves' booty, says the Detroit Free Press.

From the antechambers any of the light-fingered gentry could easily have dropped into the street, while the adjacent house, condemned by the London city council, was easily accessible. The last-named tenement, formerly a haunt for vagrants, with all the conveniences of a thieves' kitchen, had associations of the worst kind, and has not come under the ban of the London parliament a moment too soon.

Pagin was a real character, named Isaac Touch, who, when raided by the police, was found to possess a peck measure of watches. He had the name of being a confederate in worse crimes than training young thieves and buying stolen property.

Automobile Consumption Cure.
Motor-car exercise will cure consumption, says Dr. Blanchet, of Lyons. He speaks from personal experience, having recovered his own health by regularly covering a hundred miles a day in an open motor car. He avers that by this remedy the cough of tuberculous patients is gradually abolished or greatly diminished, and healthy sleep and appetite produced. It is most essential that the body should be duly protected from cold. The elements of the cure are the long stay in the open air and the increased atmospheric pressure due to the rapid motion, which expands and strengthens the lungs. —London Mail.

Traveling Hint.
On a long railway journey a woman can keep the dust and dirt from her hat by placing it in a large paper bag and hanging it up. A useful bag for a wet wash cloth or sponge can be made of rubber, the outside being covered with plain or fancy silk. —Boston Budget.

Residence Completely Destroyed.

On Sunday about 1 o'clock at the home of Anderson Alfrey, in this city, fire was discovered in the attic, between kitchen and dining room. The fire when first seen was small, but spread rapidly and was remarkably hot. The residence was completely destroyed with outbuildings. But little furniture and other articles were saved.

The house was built less than five years ago, and cost $1,200, insured for $500; the furniture cost $760 and was insured for $300. Many other articles including bedding, clothing and table supplies were burned. This is the second time he has been burned out.

BAMBOOS OF THE JAPANESE

Most Useful Material Is as Indispensable as White Pine in America.

The young bamboo suggests to most Americans a faithful fishing rod or a dainty fan. To the Japanese and Chinese, who are the most practical agriculturists in the world, it is as indispensable as the white pine to the American farmer, says the National Geographic Magazine. They are not only dependent on it for much of their building material, but make their ropes, mats, kitchen utensils and innumerable other articles out of it.

There are many varieties of the bamboo plant, from the species which is woven into mats to the tall bamboo tree which the Chinese use for the mast of his large boat. One variety is cultivated as a vegetable, and the young shoots eaten like asparagus, or they may be salted, pickled or preserved.

The rapidity of growth of the bamboo is perhaps its most wonderful characteristic. There are actual records of a bamboo growing three feet in a single day, or at the rate of 1 1/2 inches an hour. Varieties of bamboo are found everywhere in Japan, even where there are heavy falls of snow in winter. It is a popular misconception that bamboos grow only in the tropics. Japan is a land of bamboos, and yet where these plants grow it is not so warm in winter as it is in California. Some of these varieties could be grown commercially in the United States.

LONG-HORNED CATTLE CONE

Breed Once So Common in Texas Displaced by Stock of Greater Value.

There was a time when the "Texas steer" breed of cattle covered the grazing grounds of the southwest. They were the descendants of the long-horned cattle which the early Spanish explorers and adventurers brought from their homes across the seas. Hundreds of thousands of them ranged the unfenced pastures, rendering little more than a small tribute of hide and tallow to the Mexican or beef to the Indian. Finally, the cowboy came into existence, and these wild denizens of the plains were dragged from their high estate and became the subjects of sordid commerce, says the Kansas City Journal.

These cattle were rough in appearance and usually brown, dun and black in color, there being no deep reds and roans. Their horns, however, were their really distinguishing features. There were certainly immense, often from four to five feet across from tip to tip. They were naturally wild brutes. Some of them could never be rounded up, but had to be shot in order that the others might be got under some kind of control. There were in every herd a few fighters which the cowboys called "mossheads." They would fight viciously among themselves or with the other cattle and would frequently gore the horses of the cowboys to death.

The longhorns have now practically all disappeared. Their place has been taken by graded and thoroughbred cattle of a much larger size and value.

Ceylon Has Rare Exhibit

"The Eden of Eastern Wave" Well Represented at the St. Louis Exposition.

One of the most picturesque pavilions in the World's Fair grounds is that erected by the government of Ceylon. Recently it is a reproduction of the famous Buddhist "Temple of the Tooth," at Kandy, in the center of the island, where a traditional relic of the great oriental teacher has been enshrined for many hundreds of years and to this day draws devotees from all parts of Asia. Internally, the building is adapted for a display of Ceylon's commercial products, artistic manufactures, and ethnological and archaeological curios.

The broad and cool verandas are a favorite place of resort, for here fragrant tea is served by deting-ding and softly-moving Cingalese waiters.

FAMILY OF MOROS AT HOME

garbed in their picturesque native costume—white robe, crimson sash, and tortoise-shell comb to confine the long flowing tresses. But the sight-seer, rested and refreshed, should not depart without a visit to the upper story of the building, where he will find himself transported to the orient, surrounded by objects of rare beauty and fascinating interest, wandering for a spell in the beautiful isle that has been so aptly named "The Eden of the Eastern Wave."

But, after all, the Ceylon with which most of us are concerned is the white man's Ceylon—the country where tea is produced by the hundred million pounds and forms the basis of a thriving and world-wide commerce. And yet even in the history of the tea trade there is romance—the romance that lies in the display of human grit, in the wrestling of fortune from direct ruin and disaster. A generation ago Ceylon was a land of coffee and of prosperous coffee planters. But a fungus blight swept over the gardens, and in an incredibly short time almost wiped out the industry. Cinchona, or quinine, was tried as a substitute, and for a time proved profitable, but soon over-supply made this product "a drug in the market" in the metaphorical of the phrase. Then the tea plant was introduced from Assam and Darjiling in northeastern India, and so soon as it gave evidence of thriving the cultivation was promptly extended, not in their own particular industries have not yet found uses for each and every by-product. In American packing houses it is a proverbial saying that everything is saved except the squeal of the magnificent porker.

But the coconut palm in Ceylon is made to yield quite as full a profit. The leaves of the palm are used for roofing, the ribs of the leaves for brooms, the coarse outer fiber of the nut for matting and cordage, the finer inner fiber for the stuffing of mattresses. The flesh of the nut supplies a natural food, and, desiccated and dried, a flavoring for confectionery; its milk is a delicious fresh beverage, its extracted oil forms a valuable material for soap and candle making, the residuum from the oil press goes to the fattening of cattle, while the refined oil makes an excellent substitute for lard for cooking purposes, and the refined lard a delicious butter for table use. The toddy or milk drawn from the tree stem, is distilled into arrack, a potent spirit, or turned into vinegar; its sugar, obtained by evaporation, forms a sweet meat; the bud or "cabbage" at the apex of the stem makes an excellent vegetable, and is often pickled; the best of the shells are carved for ornament, or converted into cooking utensils, while the others are burned as fuel, smoldered and giving a good charcoal; even the blossom in its long sheath is utilized as a torch; the trunk affords rafters, beams, troughs, canoes merely over the old coffee estates, but at far higher elevations where the more delicate coffee shrub could not grow. Although many planters went down in the period of financial stress, the survivors found themselves in the end with bettered prospects. So rapid has been the advance of Ceylon tea that now the little island, just two-thirds the size of Ireland, produces over 150,000,000 pounds annually, and China has found herself virtually ousted from many of her old markets.

But Ceylon, with far-reaching and enterprising men engaged in her staple industry, is ever on the outlook for new customers.

Tea, however, is by no means the only commercial product of Ceylon. Cocoa, spices in great variety (notably cinnamon, cloves and cardamoms), vegetable oils, drugs, tanning bark, and cradles; the sawn timber supplies tables, chairs, and virtually all the furniture of a comfortable home; while the rotos again help to keep the family fire alight. In the east or in the west, no more perfect illustration is afforded of a commercial "clean up." That the profits of coconut farming are great, let the following table of exports from last year's returns bear its eloquent testimony:

Coconut oil, 665,357 cwt.
Cocoa (dried coconut), 721,575 cwt.
Ponape (feed for cattle), 299,972 cwt.
Coir (the fiber), 244,965 cwt.
Desiccated coconut, 485,269 lbs.
Arrack, 72,619 gallons.
Nuts (see nutmeg), 12,129,249.
And all this was in addition to the supplies utilized on the island itself.

STOMACH DOSING WILL NOT CURE.

Only Way to Cure Catarrh is by Breathing Hyomei.

Ask any physician if catarrh is a blood disease and he will tell you that it is a diseased condition of the mucous membrane and that it cannot be cured by blood purifiers, pills, tablets, or other forms of stomach dosing. The only sensible and scientific way to cure catarrh is by the use of Hyomei.

Breathed for a few minutes, four or five times a day, through a hard rubber inhaler that is so small that it can be carried in the vest pocket, Hyomei will absolutely destroy all catarrhal germs and cure the disease.

W. S. L. Lloyd, one of the most reliable firms in Mt. Sterling, is giving his personal guarantee with every package of Hyomei he sells, that it will effect a cure or he will return the money. He has had scores of reports of remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh by Hyomei.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00 and comprises an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei and a dropper. The inhaler will last a lifetime; and additional bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50c. 9-11

Judge Parker's Attitude.

By his letter to Mr. John G. Milburn, Judge Parker has cleared away all doubts as to his attitude on the question of Philippine independence, and has made it impossible for any imperialistic editor, Republican or Democratic, to pretend that there is no essential difference between his views and those of the President.

"No difference between Judge Parker and the President's attitude? There is all the difference between night and day, right and wrong, honor and dishonor. Mr. Parker has entrenched himself squarely on the most fundamental principles of this Republic. He and his party have sworn anew allegiance to the Democratic doctrine that men shall have the right to govern themselves unhampered by masters of another race and clime. If he is chosen President he will do everything in his power to hasten the day when the American flag shall be hauled down as honorably and as nobly as it was by Theodore Roosevelt's order from the flagstaffs of Havana on May 20, 1902, to that official's lasting credit."

Carter County.

On another page is found some items from Carter. The writer spent Friday afternoon and Saturday here.

At Grayson we were told that the new County of Beckham will be established, but that its opponents would probably delay formation until another legislature meets. The survey of Carter county has been completed and it has a surplus of area.

At Grayson we were informed that at the reunion "fence games" and gambling were in abundance. Another great reunion will occur this week at Olive Hill, lasting three days, beginning on Thursday.

Walking from E. K. Junction to Leon we met Alfred Fannin, aged 60, son of Trav. Fannin, of Morgan county. He said that his father and mother had 18 children: 12 sons and 6 daughters. Twelve of these are now living. All his brothers have been members of the Masonic Lodge. He only was out. He lives near Leon.

We spent Saturday afternoon and night at Denton, and attended preaching at Baptist Church at night. Found very acceptable entertainment at the Denton Hotel, kept by Mrs. Jerome Duval.

JEFFERSONVILLE.

Misses Nancy Greer and Lillian Ramsey have just returned from a visit to their sister, Mrs. Lizzie Booth, of Little Rock. They had a delightful visit and were highly entertained by such loyal people of Bourbon.

The news reached us of the sale of Mr. Greer's property, and with sorrowing hearts we expected to give up Miss Greer, but what was our delight to know they purchased the A. G. Anderson property, and our popular young lady is to remain in our midst but we fear Cupid will soon take her away.

And Miss Ramsey's return to Ladoga, Ind., the 1st of October, how our community and friends will miss her. Can it be Cupid taking her back? Not knowing, we can only extend our hearty congratulations to our two devoted, beautiful young ladies.

COUNTERFEIT WORKS OF ART

Making of Bogus Antiques Has Become Quite an Industry in Italy.

William Le Queux notes an amazing growth in Italy of the manufacture of counterfeit antiques, reports an exchange.

He says he has stood in more than one sculptor's studio and seen "ages" given to marble by a newly discovered process which in 12 hours will give to a statue 500 times its true value. The greater part of this output is said to be shipped to New York.

According to Mr. Le Queux, the largest profit is, however, made on arms and pictures. The armory where the greater part of the "ancient" arms sold by dealers in Italy is forged is in a back street in Leghorn. Here in a couple of tumble-down old blacksmith shops every conceivable kind of armor is made, from the fourteenth century helmet or breastplate to "ancient" gauntlets, halberds, swords and daggers.

"I have watched these swords being stamped with the marks of monograms of the well-known Spanish armorers of the sixteenth century," writes Mr. Le Queux, "the coronet in a shield of Domingo, the crossed scissiors of Sanchez, the half-moon of Juan Martin or the star of Gil De Alman, together with good 'selling' Latin inscriptions or owners' names with dates. I have stood by and seen how the steel is treated with acids, how the bronze hilts are painted with some solution to render them old and how they are placed in troughs of damp earth to induce rust, and patina before being sold to the dealers at so much a dozen as sorted."

DICK TURPIN IN RUSSIA.

Student Who Turned Highwayman and Gave Stolen Money to the Poor.

"Solomon II., by the grace of God king of the Jews." This was the way in which a very remarkable prisoner recently signed the prison book at Kiev, Russia, says the London Mail.

His history is curious. He was a handsome, hard-working student of Kiev seminary, but on finishing his course, he immediately provided himself with a revolver, dagger and a number of forged papers and passes, and began a career of robbery and brigandage which was marked throughout by consummate skill and forethought.

He murdered and stole on the highway, his destiny in Kiev including a staff captain and a master of the watch. At his richly furnished apartments in Kiev he dispensed lavish hospitality to a circle of most respectable friends, who never suspected the source of his wealth.

His capture was brought about by the accidental protrusion of a revolver from his coat pocket while he was bargaining with a fur merchant. The latter pointed him out to a detective, and "Solomon II." was arrested and bound like a dangerous wild beast.

At the preliminary examination he confessed to a long series of robberies, the proceeds of which he appears to have dispensed largely in succoring the poor and the outcast. He denied any murders, however, professing penitence, and intimates his anxiety to expiate his misdeeds in the prayerful seclusion of a monastery.

Speed of Elevators.

Without swift and safe elevators a modern office building of 15 or 20 stories would be nearly as useless for business purposes as the Washington monument or the pyramid of Cheops. Some rapid elevators give nervous persons the impression that they are moving with the velocity of a railway train. In truth, however, the highest practicable speed for a way elevator is said by a writer in the Architectural Record to be 450 feet per minute, and for an express elevator 600 to 700 feet per minute. In a very tall building a greater speed is possible than in one of less height.

Circuit Court.
The examination of Chester A. Gourley, of Beattyville, Ky., for law license was held in open court by B. F. Day and R. H. Winn, during motion hour on Tuesday morning. Mr. Gourley passed a highly creditable examination and was given his license. He is a son of Judge G. W. Gourley and a graduate of University of Virginia law school. We predict for him a brilliant future in his chosen profession.

James Freeman, who shot and killed John Willoughby because of a trouble originating from horse jockeying, had his second trial last week and was convicted of manslaughter and given two years in the penitentiary.

Dave Johnson had his trial for the killing of Joe Wilson about a year ago, and was acquitted.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Ed Callahan and B. F. French, brought here from Harrison county, and which grew out of the Jett-White cases at that place, is set for Thursday. The charge is subornation of perjury. Witnesses in the Jett-White cases testified that they had been induced by these men to swear to a false location of the defendants at the time of the murder of Mr. Marcum, for which Jett and White were convicted and sentenced to life terms in the penitentiary. Much interest is manifested in this case.

The case of James Bach, brought here from Harrison Circuit Court under an indictment of that court, was on Monday demurred out of court by Judge Apperson. It was defective because the crime for which he was indicted was not named. The grand jury was reconvened Tuesday morning when the evidence was brought before them and Bach was again indicted. A demurrer was filed to this indictment, and the Commonwealth admitting the indictment was not good, the Court sustained the demurrer and referred the matter to the grand jury. He was re-indicted and as we go to press the jury is being selected.

There are at least sixty Breathitt county men here attending Court.

Judge Would Not Vacate.

When the case of Mrs. Arbrella Marcum against Judge James Hargis, Senator Alex Hargis, Ed Callahan and B. F.
